Class History (Concluded)

As it always does vacation went very quickly, and we soon found ourselves back in school. But this year we were juniors. And we assumed an entirely different attitude. We were now well acquainted with the school and many members of our class participated in various activities such as: newspaper reporters, yearbook staff members, and athletics. The big event of the year for us as for every other class was the ordering of our class rings. After what seemed like years our rings finally came and we were all busy for the next few days showing them off. Time passed even faster than the preceding year and soon it was May and prom time again.

Our senior year started according to schedule on August twenty-ninth. We were now the head of the "roost"—real seniors!! Our last football season passed quickly and then we were occupied with the class play, which was a big success. Then came basketball season, the Gym Exhibit, the Spring Concert, and then the final event, the really big one, our prom.

Like every preceding class we hate to go, but with our heads held high we step forth to take our places in the world of today.

THE ORANGE AND BLACK

Oh, when the orange and black come down the field,
We know that they will never, never yield;
We know that they will fight to do or die;
We know that they will fight till victory is nigh,
So we will cheer, cheer, cheer them on their way,
And in the end, then we can surely say
That when the orange and black come down the field, down the field,
They will win, Rah! Rah! Rah!
